Summary:

Darren represents parents, children and local authorities across the whole range of children related disputes. Darren specialises in complex cases at High Court level and above involving:

- disputes as to the cause of catastrophic injuries and/or death of children, particularly cases that may involve Ehlers Danlos Syndrome and other metabolic and genetic disorders;
- allegations of recent or historic sexual abuse;
- fabricated or induced illness allegations;
- disputes as to the deprivation of liberty of a child;
- parents with special needs;
- vulnerable or child witnesses.

Darren also has extensive experience in contentious private law cases involving allegations of parental alienation, intractable contact disputes, domestic and international relocation.

Public Law Children:

Darren has extensive experience in cases of the most complex kind that are heard in the Family Court, the Family Division of the High Court and the Court of Appeal. He is instructed on behalf of parents, children and local authorities and has a keen eye to the detail of a case. He demonstrates a clear understanding of the medical science that the court considers when determining the cause of injury or death of the child with who the court is concerned. Darren also has extensive experience in complex fact-finding hearings concerning allegations of fabricated illness and sexual abuse.

Many of the cases in which Darren appears are unreported to protect the confidentiality of the family. Examples of reported public law cases are:

Re B - L (Children) (Care Proceedings: Responsibility for Injury) [2004] All ER (D) 345(May), a case concerning a successful appeal to the Court of Appeal, against findings that the mother had perpetrated injuries to the child, due to the trial Judge breaching the mother's right to a fair trial by unfairly relying on evidence that the local authority had agreed was not relevant to the fact-finding hearing.

Re L (Care Proceedings: Removal of Child) [2008] 1 FLR 575, a case concerning the test to be applied by the court when making an interim care order.

ES (A child) [2017] EWFC B96, a case concerning Ehlers Danlos Syndrome in which it was successfully argued that EDS was the cause of the numerous bruises suffered by the child. It was also successfully argued, by challenging the evidence of a radiologist, that the child had suffered 2 rib fractures and not the 12 rib fractures and 2 metaphyseal fractures alleged by the local authority.

Private Law Children:

Darren specialises in representing parents and children in cases involving proven or alleged parental alienation. He is extremely familiar with how such cases should be managed by the court, given the unusual features of these cases that require the court to think 'out of the box' to achieve the best result of the child.

Darren is instructed in high conflict residence cases, internal and international relocation cases and surrogacy/applications for parental orders.
